

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to an apparatus and method of dosing pre-set quantities of gas, wherein the addition of known quantities of gas is required. The apparatus is designed to dosify gases in variable quantities, with temperature correction. The apparatus and the method of the present invention is mainly applied on the gasification of containers used to transport foodstuffs, which must be kept at a controlled environment in order to better preserve them.